

About our overdrafts.

What is an overdraft?

An overdraft is where we lend you money when you wouldn't otherwise have enough to pay for something. It is a form of short-term credit. You can find out more about our overdraft products at tsb.co.uk/current-accounts/overdrafts

There are two kinds of overdraft.

1. Arranged Overdraft – an Arranged Overdraft is a type of short-term borrowing. We agree an amount in advance, allowing you to pay for things when there isn't enough money in your account (so long as it's within your Arranged limit). It's useful for borrowing a small amount for a short period of time.
2. Unarranged Overdraft – when you pay for something and there isn't enough money in your account, or you spend more than the limit on your Arranged Overdraft (if you have one), you're asking us to give you an Unarranged Overdraft. It will cost the same as an Arranged Overdraft, but there is no guarantee we'll be willing to lend you the extra money.

Overdrafts are not the best option for longer-term borrowing. You can find out more about our other borrowing products at tsb.co.uk/help/support/managing-money/borrowing-sensibly

What are the charges for using an overdraft?

We charge you interest when we lend you money using an overdraft. The interest rate we charge is personal to you and may go up, or down, based on how you manage your accounts with us and information we receive from external Credit Reference Agencies. For example, repeated use of Unarranged Overdrafts or having payments returned could result in your interest rate going up.

The overdraft cost calculator will help you to find out exactly how much your overdraft will cost for different amounts and durations. Please check our overdraft cost calculator at tsb.co.uk/current-accounts/overdraft-cost-calculator

You can find out your personal interest rate by checking your statement, phoning us or visiting your nearest branch.

To understand even more about our fees please see our Banking Charges Guide.

When do you have to pay your overdraft interest?

We'll tell you about any overdraft interest that you have to pay at least 14 days before we take the amount from your account. We'll also tell you when we take the amount from your account.

Can an overdraft impact my credit file?

The information on your credit file is used by a lender to help them decide whether to offer you credit and on what terms.

The way you manage your Arranged or Unarranged Overdraft may affect your credit rating and your ability to borrow money in the future.

What if I want to reduce or remove my Arranged Overdraft?

You can reduce or remove your Arranged Overdraft at any time using Internet Banking or the TSB Mobile Banking App. Alternatively call us on 03459 758 758 or visit one of our branches. To reduce or remove any overdraft you must have paid back any money you owe us, or your account must be within your new Arranged Overdraft limit.
